

EMPIRE AND AFTER

Englishness in Postcolonial Perspective

Edited by

Graham MacPhee

and

Prem Poddar

Berghahn Books
New York • Oxford

CONTENTS

| | |
|---|-----|
| Acknowledgements | vii |
| Introduction: Nationalism Beyond the Nation-State Graham MacPhee & Prem Poddar | 1 |
| Part I: Nation & Empire | |
| 1. "As White As Ours": Africa, Ireland, Imperial Panic, and the Effects of British Race Discourse Enda Duffy | 25 |
| 2. Writing About Englishness: South Africa's Forgotten Nationalism Vivian Bickford-Smith | 57 |
| 3. Passports, Empire, Subjecthood Prem Poddar | 73 |
| 4. Friends Across the Water: British Orientalists and Middle Eastern Nationalisms Geoffrey Nash | 87 |
| 5. Under English Eyes: The Disappearance of Irishness in Conrad's The Secret Agent Graham MacPhee | 101 |
| Part II: Postcolonial Legacies | |
| 6. Brit Bomber: The Fundamentalist Trope in Hanif Kureishi's The Black Album and "My Son the Fanatic" Sheila Ghose | 121 |
| 7. Crisis of Identity? Englishness, Britishness, and Whiteness Bridget Byrne | 139 |
| 8. Conserving Purity, Labouring the Past: A Tropological Evolution of Englishness Colin Wright | 159 |
| 9. All the Downtown Tories: Mourning Englishness in New York Matthew Hart | 181 |
| Notes on Contributors | 201 |
| Index | 203 |