

Contents

Introduction by Thomas Lahusen and Peter H. Solomon, Jr.	1
I. Markets and Facades
“I lost it at the market”: Some Thoughts on the Political Economy of Post-Soviet Russia Robert E. Johnson	15
Markets, Money, and Private Property: The Persistence of Soviet Socialism in Russia Today James R. Millar	26
Klychkov i Pustota : Post-Soviet Bureaucrats and the Production of Institutional Facades Jessica Allina-Pisano	40
Informal Networks in Postcommunist Economies: A “Topographical Map” Alena V. Ledeneva	57
Administrative Styles in Soviet History: The Development of Patrimonial Rationality Peter H. Solomon, Jr.	78
II. History Inside Out
“By a Different Yardstick”: Boris Mironov’s A Social History of Imperial Russia: 1700-1917 , and its Reception in Russia Ben Eklof	93
From a “Prominent Biologist” to a “Red Frankenstein”: Ilya Ivanov in Soviet and Post-Soviet Biographies Nikolai Kremontsov	120

Who's Afraid of Joseph Stalin? Tracy McDonald	133
Whither Anti-Stalinism? Kathleen E. Smith	153
III. Dispensing Welfare and Punishment
"Untraditional Sex" and the "Simple Russian": Nostalgia for Soviet Innocence in the Polemics of Dilia Enikeeva Dan Healey	173
The Social Promise: Rights, Privileges, and Responsibilities in Russian Welfare State Reform since Gorbachev Andrea Chandler	192
Social Welfare or Wasteful Excess?: The Legacy of Soviet Tuberculosis Control Programs in Post-Soviet Russia Michael Z. David	214
Continuities in Penal Russia: Space and Gender in Post-Soviet Geography of Punishment Judith Pallot	234
IV. Landscape after the Future
Post-Post-Communist Sincerity: Pioneers, Cosmonauts, and Other Soviet Heroes Born Today Alexei Yurchak	257
Finding the Soviet in Post-Soviet Space: An Excavation of the Post-Soviet City of Nizhni Novgorod Heather DeHaan	277
Decay or Endurance? The Ruins of Socialism Thomas Lahusen	307
Contributors	321