

Contents

List of figures	page vii
List of tables	viii
Notes on contributors	ix
Acknowledgments	xv
1 Introduction: a plea for a “vicious turn” in global history Jessica R. Pliley, Robert Kramm, and Harald Fischer-Tiné	1
PART I HEALTH AND THE BODY	31
2 Modernity, vice, and the problem of nakedness Philippa Levine	33
3 “Godless Edens”: surveillance, eroticized anarchy, and “depraved communities” in Britain and the wider world, 1890–1930 Antony Taylor	53
4 Physical culture as “natural healing”: Eugen Sandow’s campaign against the vices of civilization c. 1890–1920 Carey A. Watt	74
PART II DRINKS AND DRUGS	101
5 The specter of degeneration: alcohol and race in West Africa in the early twentieth century Charles Ambler	103

- 6 A question of social medicine or racial hygiene?
The Bulgarian temperance discourse and eugenics in the interwar period, 1920–1940
Nikolay Kamenov
- 7 Threats to empire: illicit distillation, venereal diseases, and colonial disorder in British West Africa, 1930–1948
Emmanuel Akyeampong
- 8 Medical and criminological constructions of drug addiction in late Imperial and early Soviet Russia
Pavel Vasilyev
- 9 Cigarette smoking in modern Buenos Aires: the sudden change in a century-old continuity
Diego Armus

PART III PROSTITUTION AND SEX TRAFFICKING

- 10 The FBI's White Slave Division: the creation of a national regulatory regime to police prostitutes in the United States, 1910–1918
Jessica R. Pliley
- 11 Anti-vice lives: peopling the archives of prostitution
in interwar India
Stephen Legg
- 12 China's prostitution regulation system in an international context, 1900–1937
Elizabeth J. Remick
- 13 “Hey, GI, want pretty flower girl?”: venereal disease, sanitation, and geopolitics in US-occupied Japan and Korea, 1945–1948
Robert Kramm
- 14 Global anti-vice activism: a postmortem
David T. Courtwright