

Contents

Preface vii

Introduction	1
School Choice Today	3
Not Your Parents' Schooling	10
Design Trade-Offs	11
What Follows	16
PART 1 Historical Reflections on School Choice	21
Original Choices	23
An Educational Ecology Emerges	28
Between Rome and Albany	35
Rebels with Causes	48
Choosing Neighbors and Schools	51
Brown: Crawling Past Plessy	53
The Bus Stops Here	57
Experimental Visions	63
Toward Plural Public Education	66
From Plural Visions to Bounded Choices	70
Federal Support Shifts from Magnets to Charters	73
PART 2 The Value of Choice: A Normative Assessment	83
Whose Education Is It?	86
Private Options for Education Consumers	86
Schools for the Public, by the Public	90
Can Parents Be Effective Education Consumers?	92
Labs for Innovation, or Unaccountable "Ghost Districts"?	96
Choice through Privatization Supports Innovation	96
The Limits of Innovation	98
Limits of Accountability through Private Choice	102
Accountability through Transparency	102

Accountability through Participation	104
Accountability through Sanctioning	104
Accountability through Resistance	105
Equal Access to Quality Education, or Another Layer of Separation?	106
Choice Provides Equal Access to Quality Education	106
Choice Creates Another Layer of Inequality and Separation	109
Higher-Quality Education?	109
Equal Access to Quality Education?	110
New Layers of Separation	114
Conclusion: Making Up Our Collective Mind	120

Notes 131

Index 175