

Contents

- 1 Introduction — 1
  - 1.1 Existing Research — 4
  - 1.2 Outline of the Study — 7

- 2 Theoretical Approaches — 11
  - 2.1 Theoretical Approaches to the Study of Global Educational Transfer between Socialist States — 11
  - 2.2 Socialist Globalization — 17

- 3 Methodological Considerations and Available Sources — 21
  - 3.1 Methodological Considerations — 21
    - 3.1.1 Workers' Faculties as Case Studies — 21
    - 3.1.2 Connecting Diachronic and Synchronic Levels — 23
    - 3.1.3 Internal and External Comparison — 24
    - 3.1.4 Transfer of Institutions and/or Ideas — 25
    - 3.1.5 Use of Historic Terms — 26
  - 3.2 Available Sources — 28
    - 3.2.1 Archives in Germany — 28
    - 3.2.2 Archives in Vietnam — 30
    - 3.2.3 Archives in Cuba — 31
    - 3.2.4 Archives in Mozambique — 34
    - 3.2.5 Interviews with Experts — 35

- Ingrid Miethe & Alexandra Piepiorka
- 4 The Starting Point: The Rabfak in Soviet Russia — 39
  - 4.1 Origins and Development of the Rabfak — 40
    - 4.1.1 First Period: 1919–1930 — 41
    - 4.1.2 Second Period (1930–1941) — 48
    - 4.1.3 Types of Rabfaks — 51
    - 4.1.4 The Students — 53
  - 4.2 Characteristics of the Rabfak for Comparison — 58

- 5 The Global Dissemination of an Educational Idea — 61
  - 5.1 The Dissemination of the Rabfak System in the Territory of the Soviet Union — 61
    - 5.1.1 Dissemination in the Territory of the Soviet Union — 62

- 5.1.2 The Mongol Rabfak as a Special Form of International Transfer — 63
- 5.2 Europe — 65
  - 5.2.1 The People's Republic of Poland — 65
  - 5.2.2 The Czechoslovak Socialist Republic (ČSSR) — 67
  - 5.2.3 The Romanian People's Republic — 68
  - 5.2.4 The Hungarian People's Republic — 69
  - 5.2.5 The People's Republic of Bulgaria — 69
- 5.3 Asia — 70
  - 5.3.1 The Democratic People's Republic of Korea — 71
  - 5.3.2 The People's Republic of China — 73
  - 5.3.3 The Democratic Republic of Afghanistan — 80
- 5.4 Latin America — 82
  - 5.4.1 The Republic of Nicaragua — 82
- 5.5 Africa — 84

Ingrid Miethe

- 6 The Workers' Faculties in the German Democratic Republic (GDR) — 85
  - 6.1 The Pre-university Divisions: Combining German Educational Tradition and Soviet Influences — 86
    - 6.1.1 Drawing on German Educational Traditions — 87
    - 6.1.2 Soviet Influences — 94
    - 6.1.3 Attempts at Homogenization after 1948 — 98
  - 6.2 The Founding and Development of the Workers' and Peasants' Faculties (ABF) — 100
  - 6.3 The Function and Effects of the VAs and the ABFs — 111
    - 6.3.1 The Function of the ABFs in Regard to University Politics — 111
    - 6.3.2 The Social Composition of the ABFs — 117
    - 6.3.3 The ABF in the Overall Structure of Access to Higher Education and the University — 125
  - 6.4 Concluding Evaluation — 128
    - 6.4.1 The VAs and ABFs in the Context of Education History — 128
    - 6.4.2 The Function of the VAs and ABFs — 135

Tim Kaiser

- 7 The Worker-Peasant Complementary Education Schools of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam — 137
  - 7.1 The Worker-Peasant Complementary Education Schools — 141
    - 7.1.1 Establishment of the Central W-P School — 142

- 7.1.2 Foreign Influences in the Establishment of the Central W-P School — 148
- 7.1.3 Development of the Central W-P School — 153
- 7.1.4 Spreading the W-P School System to the Provinces — 157
- 7.1.5 Closure of the W-P Schools — 166
- 7.1.6 Development after 1964 — 170
- 7.2 Functions and Results — 173
- 7.2.1 Educating Worker-Peasant Cadres — 173
- 7.2.2 Changing the Composition of the Higher Education Student Body — 183
- 7.2.3 Placing Political Activists as Students in Higher Education Institutions — 196
- 7.2.4 Supplying Personnel for the Socialist State — 202
- 7.3 Conclusion — 203

Tobias Kriele

- 8 The Workers' Faculties in Cuba — 207
- 8.1 Precursors of the Cuban Workers' Faculties — 209
- 8.2 The Founding of the Workers' Faculties in Cuba — 214
- 8.2.1 The Founding of the Workers' Faculty in Santa Clara — 215
- 8.2.2 The founding of the Workers' and Peasants' Preparatory Faculty in Havana — 217
- 8.2.3 Nomenclature and Symbolic References — 222
- 8.2.4 The Founding of the V.I. Lenin Special School — 226
- 8.3 Structure and Organization of the Cuban Workers' Faculties — 228
- 8.3.1 Structure and Organization of the FPOCs — 228
- 8.3.2 Structure and Organization of the V. I. Lenin Special School — 234
- 8.3.3 Bridging the Gap between Adult and Higher Education — 238
- 8.4 Function and Effects of the Workers' Faculties in Cuba — 241
- 8.4.1 Changing the Social Composition of the Student Body — 241
- 8.4.2 Political Function in Higher Education — 251
- 8.4.3 Formation of Technical Cadres — 254
- 8.5 Concluding Evaluation — 256

Alexandra Piepiorka

- 9 The Faculty for Former Combatants and Vanguard Workers in Mozambique — 261
- 9.1 Historical Context of Education in Mozambique — 261

- 9.2 The Institutional Predecessor: “Business Management Courses for Workers” (1979–1983) — 265
- 9.2.1 International Experience and Local Approaches for the Business Management Courses — 269
- 9.2.2 The Implementation of the Business Management Courses for Workers at UEM — 272
- 9.3 The Founding and Development of the FACOTRAV (1983–1992) — 282
- 9.3.1 Objectives and Methods of the FACOTRAV — 284
- 9.3.2 The Teaching Staff of the FACOTRAV — 287
- 9.4 Evaluation of the Function of the FACOTRAV — 297
- 9.4.1 Composition of the FACOTRAV Student Body by Social Class — 301
- 9.4.2 The Function of the FACOTRAV in University Politics — 305
- 9.5 Conclusion — 308

Tim Kaiser & Ingrid Miethé

10 Theoretical Conclusions — 311

- 10.1 Educational Transfer and the Origins of Workers’ Faculties — 311
- 10.1.1 A Dynamic Process of Direct and Indirect Transfer — 314
- 10.1.2 The Workers’ Faculties Were Not Copies, but Autonomous Variants of the Rabfak — 316
- 10.1.3 Marxist Ideology as a Basis for Similar Interpretation of Situations — 317
- 10.1.4 Educational Transfer as a Transfer of Ideas — 319
- 10.2 The Role of the Workers’ Faculties under Local Conditions — 321
- 10.2.1 Variant 1: Workers’ Faculties as Instruments in University Politics — 321
- 10.2.2 Variant 2: Workers’ Faculties as a Means of Educating a National Intelligentsia — 323
- 10.2.3 Variant 3: Parallel Functions of University Politics and Educating a National Intelligentsia — 324
- 10.3 Workers’ Faculties and Institutional Transfer: Theoretical Observations — 325
- 10.3.1 Diversity as a Reason for the Worldwide Appeal of the Workers’ Faculty Model — 325
- 10.3.2 The Global Dissemination of the Workers’ Faculties Was a Discrete Part of the General Dissemination of Modern Educational Systems — 327

10.3.3 The Global Dissemination of the Workers' Faculties Idea Suggests a Global Socialist Education Sphere — 331

11 Appendix — 335

- 11.1 List of figures — 335
- 11.2 List of tables — 335
- 11.3 List of Abbreviations — 336
- 11.4 List of Sources — 339
  - 11.4.1 Printed Sources — 339
  - 11.4.2 Sighted Periodicals — 344
  - 11.4.3 Unprinted Sources — 345
  - 11.4.4 Oral Sources — 348
- 11.5.5 Online-Archives — 349
- 11.5 Bibliography — 349

Persons — 383

Places — 385

