

Table of Contents

Series Acknowledgement	VII
Introduction: Approaches to the Histories of Prostitution in Central, East Central, and South Eastern Europe	IX
Sonja Dolinsek and Magdalena Saryusz-Wolska
1. "9 o'clock this morning, I took a girl to bed." Writing on Military Prostitution in the Early 19th Century, Based on the Diary of Johann Friedrich Carl Paris	1
Kim Breitmoser
2. Pushing Boundaries: Localisation of Nineteenth Century Prostitution in Florence	23
Alexandra Skedzuhn-Safir
3. Prostitution and the Security Culture of the German Empire (1871–1914)	45
Tobias Bruns
4. Ravishers or Tradesmen? Understanding East European Jewish Traffickers at Home and Abroad, 1880s–1920s	75
Keely Stauter-Halsted
5. Prostitution in Croatia 1918–1941: From a Tolerated Occurrence to a Criminal Act	99
Stipica Grgić
6. Homosexual Male Prostitution in Early Twentieth Century Hungary	125
Judit Takács
7. The Sander Family: Prostitution, Pimping, and Justice in the Late Weimar Republic	145
Stefan Wunsch

8.	Outside the “Volksgemeinschaft”? On Prostitutes and Pimps Under National Socialism	161
	Mirjam Schnorr
9.	“Do you know each other?” Anti-VD Campaigns in Early Post-1945 Germany	187
	Magdalena Saryusz-Wolska
10.	Social Pathology or Freelance Occupation? The Debates on Prostitution and Sex Work in State-Socialist Poland	209
	Anna Dobrowolska
11.	Hunters, Hotels and Hungarian Girls: Moral Panic at the Intersection of Prostitution and Tourism Under Hungarian Consumer Socialism	231
	Priska Komáromi
12.	Behind the Crime of ‘Parasitism’: The Hidden History of Prostitution in Socialist Czechoslovakia	251
	Christiane Brenner
	Notes on Contributors	275