

Contents

Hamish Williams Editor's Notes	i
INTRODUCTION
Hamish Williams Classical Tradition, Modern Fantasy, and the Generic Contracts of Readers	xi
SECTION 1: CLASSICAL LIVES AND HISTORIES
Hamish Williams Tolkien the Classicist: Scholar and Thinker	3
Ross Clare Greek and Roman Historiographies in Tolkien's Númenor	37
SECTION 2: ANCIENT EPIC AND MYTH
Giuseppe Pezzini The Gods in (Tolkien's) Epic: Classical Patterns of Divine Interaction	73
Benjamin Eldon Stevens Middle-earth as Underworld: From Katabasis to Eucatastrophe	105
Austin M. Freeman Pietas and the Fall of the City: A Neglected Virgilian Influence on Middle-earth's Chief Virtue	131
Peter Astrup Sundt The Love Story of Orpheus and Eurydice in Tolkien's Orphic Middle-earth	165
SECTION 3: IN DIALOGUE WITH THE GREEK PHILOSOPHERS
Michael Kleu Plato's Atlantis and the Post-Platonic Tradition in Tolkien's Downfall of Númenor	193

Łukasz Neubauer
Less Consciously at First but More Consciously in the Revision: Plato's Ring of Gyges as a Putative Source of Inspiration for Tolkien's Ring of Power	217
Julian Eilmann
Horror and Fury: J.R.R. Tolkien's The Children of Húrin and the Aristotelian Theory of Tragedy	247
 SECTION 4: AROUND THE BORDERS OF THE CLASSICAL WORLD
Philip Burton
"Eastwards and Southwards": Philological and Historical Perspectives on Tolkien and Classicism	273
Richard Z. Gallant
The Noldorization of the Edain: The Roman-Germani Paradigm for the Noldor and Edain in Tolkien's Migration Era	305
Juliette Harrisson
"Escape and Consolation": Gondor as the Ancient Mediterranean and Rohan as the Germanic World in The Lord of the Rings	329
 SECTION 5: SHORTER REMARKS AND OBSERVATIONS
Alley Marie Jordan
Shepherds and the Shire: Classical Pastoralism in Middle-earth	353
Oleksandra Filonenko and Vitalii Shchepanskyi
Classical Influences on the Role of Music in Tolkien's Legendarium	365
 AFTERWORD
D. Graham J. Shipley
Afterword: Tolkien's Response to Classics in Its Wider Context	379
 INDEX		 399